Bull Realty Celebrates 20 Years in Atlanta

ATLANTA (December 7, 2017) —You’ve seen their signs, and if you own commercial real estate, you’ve likely talked to them, been on their website, and seen their national show.

Bull Realty is celebrating 20 years serving clients in Atlanta. The real estate company that started in Midtown in 1998 in a small office on Piedmont Road near Fat Matt’s, has become a regional powerhouse over the past 20 years. Bull Realty is licensed and doing business in nine Southeast states and is still headquartered here in Atlanta.

The firm is best known for its innovative marketing techniques and use of technology. In the late 90’s, the firm’s website www.BullRealty.com was the first commercial brokerage site to provide open access to resources, market information and available properties.

In 2010, the firm started a local radio show in Atlanta which became popular on 60 radio stations across the country. Now, America’s Commercial Real Estate Show is the most highly rated commercial real estate podcast and YouTube show in the nation.

When asked how the firm made it through the 2009 real estate based recession and other hurdles of 20 years, the firm’s founder Michael Bull points to his employee and agents. “It’s all about our people. We started the firm to be known for integrity and providing exceptional service. Our people make that happen. It’s a fun place to work each day when you work with such incredible people.”

The firm’s main services include dispositions, acquisition, leasing and tenant representation. To continue this reliable and respected growth for another 20 years, Bull Realty is always sourcing the next generation of agent candidates that embrace integrity, innovation and client services.
